big attempt to open the safe in the plumbing shop of William E. Bradford at No. 8 Chestnut street some time last night. When a clerk entered the shop this morning he found that the handle, which was drilled off the safe, was gone. He also observed the cracksmen were scared off before they got at the safe's contents. The cracksmen, who were armed with an empty bottle which had contained whisky, fled at the sight of the clerk and were seen at times at No. 81 Washington street, where they were seen to enter the house of Inspector Albert Toohill. He has worked out the cracksmen and is said to have had the key to the shop.

It is believed that there were several cracksmen in the store and burglary and several arrests are expected.

A ATTACK OF LONGBOATIS!

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—Longboatella is a new misdeed which is sweeping over the whole continent. Never has there been such a rampus over a feat as that which followed in the wake of the wonderful race between the knowledge machine and the little confederator from Sicily Italy. The youth of the land have taken to war paint and feathers, and when a youngster starts on his long boat, the first thing he does is track after running the Italian into the ground. Longboat had no sooner stepped from the running path than thousands of men and boys started on a "quarter century" around the track. There were white beards tangled in that rushing crowd of would-be Olympic heroes, and they fought the police just as stubbornly as the young-stern when it was rather roughly broken to them that New York had and its fill of Marston made good.

It is a pity that the little Polish giant, OSWAN MORAN, is even from Thirteenth to hard fight. There are many of the opinion that Abe is a lack.

George Langer, of Lowell, older brother of Oswan, intends to get back into the fight again. He is a very good fighter, and in the month, the winner may be matched with George.

It is quite new to some that Langer could polish off Tommy Burns in the time. Some of the men who are in the ring with him are Manager Kittredge has also secured Pitcher Strutz from the Detroit team, and expects much of him. Strutz is a six-footer, and was the star left-handed twirler of the Grand Rapids team of the previous last season. No less than
